

Get prepped for the Big Game.

It all comes down to this, two teams will be battling it out for the championship in professional football. Whether your favorite team is in it or not, it has become somewhat of a national holiday that revolves as much around the game as it does around gathering family and friends together to enjoy crazy snacks and even crazier TV commercials (do they still have those)? With a free consultation from a Home Expert, we'll help you get your home ready for the Big Game, from the right tech for watching to the right appliances for celebrating. It's game time, are you ready?

The best seat in the house.

The first step in watching any sporting event is the watching part—that means the right video setup. And while bigger is usually better, there's a reason most people don't sit in the front row at a movie theater. A Home Expert will match the size of your room with the size of your TV, then it's all about choosing picture quality (4K, 8K), the television type (OLED, QLED, NanoCell LED) and refresh rate.

Refresh rate is the speed at which a new image appears on the screen. In the majority of today's TVs you're choosing between 60Hz and 120Hz. Here, the higher the number the better. Why is this important? In sports, this will reduce the jitter of the ball flying through the air, making the action look smooth when viewing that last second Hail Mary. While this jitter is minimal on most 60Hz TVs, for smooth sports viewing you want a 120Hz TV.

For TV type, OLED, QLED, NanoCell LED—these are all a step up from LCD. Your Home Expert can guide you through the differences between each. Finally, you'll see HDR compatible on many of the more premium TVs, this means it delivers another level of contrast and color accuracy.

Wanna take the screen size up a notch? As of the writing of this blog, the largest TV on BestBuy.com is 100", which is massive. But the largest projector screen is double that at 200", which is truly game changing. With 4K and even 8K projectors (with upscaling), you're getting an incredibly crisp image with stadium-sized views.

There are also short throw projectors, which allow the projector to sit mere inches from the wall so you don't have to worry about anything creating shadows over the projected image. They also allow for a huge screen, and work in nearly any room without having to mount a projector to your ceiling.

No matter which TV or audio type, size or brand you're in the market for, a Best Buy Home Expert will help you find what's right for you, your room and your budget. That way, you'll never feel like you're sitting in the nosebleed section.

Stadium sound.

Great audio takes you from an empty stadium to a packed arena, making the game day experience that much better. Let us help you bring stunning audio home and turn those great visuals into game-changing home entertainment experiences.

Want the ultimate sound experience. Dolby Atmos surround sound uses multiple speakers all around you, even in the ceiling, to place the sound throughout the room. So, as you're watching the game, you're practically in the center of the action—hearing every grunt, hit and crowd scream. It's the ultimate in surround sound, and our Home Experts will not only show you how it works, but in select stores they can even give you a demo. Then, they will help bring it into your home so the game is more real than ever.

From Dolby Atmos surround, you can explore any number of audio experiences: surround sound, two-channel, even wireless speakers or a soundbar. Oh yeah, soundbars have come a long way. Some combine the front and center speakers with surround rear speakers while others have top speakers that bounce the sound off your ceiling to create a Dolby Atmos like experience. Soundbars used to be a compromise, now, for many situations they are an amazing solution that delivers exceptional sound.

Don't make concessions on your concession stand.

Whether you're a fanatic or not, sports and food just go together. Let a Home Expert help you outfit your kitchen with a full appliance suite to rock the game day menu with everything from an oven complete with a built-in air fryer for those fried foods to a refrigerator that makes craft ice for specialty drinks. Whatever your needs, we've got the gear that cooks up the goodies you want all while looking great doing it.

Add smaller appliances to complete your kitchen "concession stand". Stand-alone air fryers give a tasty crunch to all kinds of game day snacks, while popcorn makers, slow cookers and blenders make any kind of game day treat scrumptious. Let a Home Expert show you all the major and small appliance options available to bring that big game atmosphere home.
