

Commercial washing machines do not require the yellow EnergyGuide label found on residential appliances, but they must comply with federal efficiency standards and performance metrics set by the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE).