Setting up your keypad

Plug the USB connector into a USB port on your computer. Your computer automatically finds and installs the appropriate driver. When the installation completes, you can use your keypad.

Notes:

- When you install your keypad on a Mac, you must select the ANSI format when prompted by the operating system. The keypad will not work if you select any other format.
- Number lock is not supported on Macs. When the keypad is installed on a Mac, pressing the number keys always inputs numbers and not the navigation functions.

Cleaning your keypad

Wipe the keypad with a damp, lint-free cloth.

Troubleshooting

My keypad is not working.

- Make sure that your computer meets the system requirements.
- Make sure that the USB connector is securely attached to a USB port on your computer.
- Try connecting your keypad to a different USB port on your computer.

My keypad doesn't work after the driver is installed or removed.
